“As we sat around the tables sharing our experience, strength and hope with each other, when it was Fred's time to share, everyone in the room turned there eyes and ears towards him because we knew we were about to see that "smile" and here a humorous twist on a very serious disease. His words may have been entertaining, but the message always had a life lesson to go with it.

Here was a Man that had, and always will have a lasting impression on anyone who had the chance to share a moment with him.

Today, the A.A. community mourns the loss of a very special brother.

My thoughts and prayers are with the family today as you face this very trying time in your lives.
